Morocco claims

Spain loses Sahara

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Morocco claimed Thursday to have captured the Spanish Sahara desert area where it battled with Algeria for three days, taking 101 Algerian prisoners in all. Algeria announced its forces "have withdrawn in good order."

There was no independent verification of the claims. An official statement in Rabat said the region of Amghala, 175 miles southwest of the Algerian border, had been "cleansed of all rebel elements," a reference to guerrillas of the Algerian-backed Polisario Front which favors independence for the Spanish Sahara.

Spain is turning over the 105,000-square mile mineral-rich territory which it has held since 1884 to Morocco and Mauritania on Feb. 28. The two countries say they have historical claims to the land which Algeria opposes. The Spanish reached their decision in November after King Hassan II of Morocco sent several hundred thousand unarmed civilians on a march to the Spanish Sahara.

Military sources in the Paris earlier Thursday reported intense fighting between Morocco and Algeria, saying they used tanks and heavy artillery in the bleak, freezing desert area.

Communiques

The fighting has been reported in communiques from Algiers and Rabat with no information from the scene but foreign ministry officials in Paris said they took the communiques seriously.

The official Algerian News Agency said in Algiers that its forces withdrew "after they admirably carried out their mission."

The Moroccans said they had captured "important quantities of heavy equipment, including artillery, mortars and ground-to-air missiles."

The Moroccans took 72 prisoners Thursday, including two officers, the Rabat communique said. Fighting continued until early in the morning before the Polisario rebels suffered "several dozen killed" and resistance collapsed.

Amghala fighting

The Algerians claimed that when fighting started Tuesday in the Amghala area, its forces were merely carrying food and medicine to Sahara refugees. But the Moroccan said the Algerian soldiers came from the 41st Infantry battalion.

Mauritania, meanwhile, denied Algerian claims of fighting recently around the Atlantic coast port of Villa Cisneros, now called Dakhla and Arbo. The Algerians have claimed refugee camps in the area were bombed by Moroccan aircraft following fierce ground fighting.

House OK's secrecy, work bills

WASHINGTON — In a precedent-setting victory for President Ford, the House approved a measure Thursday night to block its intelligence committee from publicly disclosing secrets without the President's approval.

The House also overwhelmingly passed a $6.1 billion public works employment bill, setting up Congress' second spending confrontation with President Ford this election year.

The 321-to-80 vote sends the measure to Ford for an expected veto.

Kissinger sets sterner Russ policy

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Thursday outlined an intensified hard line anti-Soviet foreign policy, saying the United States must be prepared to react against any massive Russian adventure.

He told a Senate subcommittee studying Angola that "I am not saying we will police every area in the world... but wherever the Soviet Union moves hostilely, we must commit ourselves."

Rabin, Ford meet on Mid East peace

WASHINGTON — Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin held a third round of talks Thursday with President Ford, and a White House spokesman said afterward the administration was continuing efforts to promote a Middle East peace.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford told Rabin there should be "no stagnation nor stalemate."

BOISE, Idaho — Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution fell four votes short Thursday in an effort to reverse Idaho's ratification of the proposal.

Multi-million dollar addition announced for area hospital

The American Fork Hospital board of directors have announced the building of a multi-million dollar expansion on existing facilities.

The two-story addition will extend medical and surgical areas as well as add 64 beds to care areas. Funding for the construction will possibly come through federal loans, said Creta Blackburn, hospital spokeswoman.

"Bursting at seams"

"The hospital is bursting at the seams right now," said Mrs. Blackburn. The 78-bed facility has recently used remodeled basement space for offices.

Proposal of the new expansion was released Wednesday by Dean H. Garrett, hospital board chairman; Dr. Joe Murdoch, medical staff president; and Wayne R. McTague, administrator.

The two-story addition will contain 63,497 square feet. An additional 23,184 square feet of existing hospital space will also be remodeled, said Mrs. Blackburn.

Planned expansion

The expansion plan stemmed from a study made by the Medical Planning Associates of Kalbua, Calif., who conducted a comprehensive investigation of workloads at the hospital. Their study projected the future needs of the hospital up to 1985.

The projections were based on population trends, physician influx and changing patterns of health care delivery, said Mrs. Blackburn.

Bids for construction of the new addition have not yet been received, said Mrs. Blackburn. Although the Medical Association has suggested placement and types of equipment, no preliminary blueprints have been drawn up.

Media fest will feature student presentations

The best five student-produced slide-sound presentations, plus two guest slide shows, will be shown at the First BYU Multi-media Festival March 9 and 12.

The contest, sponsored by the BYU Communications Department, will be held in conjunction with the Mormon Arts Festival.

James W. Walker, color photography instructor and chairman of the contest, said the deadline for submitting entries will be March 1. All BYU students are eligible to enter.

"The only rules," Walker added, "are that the shows be no longer than 12 minutes and must adhere to BYU and Mormon Arts Festival standards. They can be produced in either color or black and white."

On March 12, the presentation will slide-sound presentation Mormon from photography, written produced by Neils Wadsworth, assistant professor of Communication and author of the "Through Camera" (BYU Press, 1975).

Three Oriental artists exhibit works Monday

An Asian Art Exhibit will open Monday at 2 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center Gallery.

The exhibit will show through Feb. 12 and will feature the art of Aiko Annette Horiuchi and Oyongel Jagchid, wives of BYU faculty members, and Ts'un Pin Lin, a noted Chinese painter.

Mrs. Horiuchi and Mrs. Jagchid will attend the opening Monday.

The exhibit is sponsored as a Centennial event by the College of Social Sciences, Asian Studies Program, in cooperation with the ASBYU Culture Office.

The exhibit will feature a variety of Oriental work, ranging from painting and watercolor to Japanese embroidery.

"It will feature a dazzling array of style, color, and medium by the Oriental people," said Dr. Spencer J. Palmer, Centennial Chairman for the College of Social Sciences, and Professor of History and Religion at BYU.

Mrs. Horiuchi is the wife of Russel N. Horiuchi, Professor of Geography and Coordinator of Asian Studies at BYU.

She was born in Tokyo, Japan. In addition to training at BYU, she studied art at the Hokkaido National College of Education and Japanese literature at Hokkaido University.

She paints watercolors and sumi-e, an Oriental style done in monochromatic on a white background.

Mrs. Jagchid is the wife of Sechin Jagchid, Professor of History at BYU. She was born in Khamachi, Mongolia. She studied education at Peking University and received training in Taiwan under the direction of Huang Chun Pi. Her work has been exhibited in Peking and Kalgan, Mongolia, and on three occasions in Taiwan. She specializes in landscape painting.

Centennial Celebrities

The life of Dr. Carl F. Eyring is a testimony of the compatibility of science and religion.

His talent and expertise in science and his commitment to his faith gave him the opportunity to show that the two are compatible.

He came to BYU in 1910, where he studied physics under Dr. Harvey Fletcher. He also studied at the University of Wisconsin, Columbia University, University of Chicago and the California Institute of Technology.

In 1924, he returned to BYU to be the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. He held that position until his death on Jan. 3, 1951.

During the university's Diamond Jubilee in 1950 the physical science center on upper campus was completed. On May 26, 1954, the building, which houses 200 lecture halls, classrooms and laboratories, was renamed the Carl F. Eyring Science Center.

In a letter to his students while he was dean, Dr. Eyring outlined some of his philosophy of how to live: "Living after the pattern of Jesus Christ is eternal living."

Universe art by Guy Wymore

Dr. Carl F. Eyring... Y educator, scientist Being a pal and being tolerant is not the process of giving up cherished ideals for others of less worth. With such an understanding of human relations, association with others will mean a lift for all... Service is the path to happiness and mental balance. A faith in the potency of service as the dispeller of dependency, homesickness, and self-pity will lead to friendliness and the making of friends, and to the performance of a task so thoroughly and completely that it will become a pleasant duty.

Rate hike requested by AT&T

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. filed with the Federal Trade Commission Thursday new rates that would increase charges for almost two-thirds of out-of-state long distance calls.

Rates for other interstate calls would either remain the same or decrease Feb. 12, if approved by the FCC, AT&T said.

It's estimated the changes will increase an average resident customer's bill by about 10 cents a month, while the average business customer's bill will go up about $2 a month.

The exact amount of the increase or decrease would, depend upon the number and type of interstate calls made, their distance and duration and the time of day placed.

The biggest increases, would be for most operator assisted calls such as person-to-person, credit card, coin and collect to reflect sharply increased labor costs, AT&T said.

The filings are in line with an FCC decision Jan. 19 that AT&T could file new rates to raise its interstate rate return from 8.74 per cent to 9.5 per cent for a $225 million a year increase.

AT&T said the new rates, would raise AT&T's annual interstate revenues by about 2 per cent.

VIDEO TAPES GONE BY

The ASBYU Social Office presented six video tape presentations last semester in the Stepdown Lounge of the Wilkinson Center.

The video tapes included artists like Stevie Wonder, Jim Croce, and Seals and Crofts. Sports were also highlighted with the NFL Football Follies, and Heavyweight Championship Fights.

This semester the Days of Thrills and Laughter has already shown, featuring Charlie Chaplin and old movies and stunts from the twenties and thirties.

VIDEO TAPES

Video tapes, a brand new program on campus, have met with tremendous response at BYU.

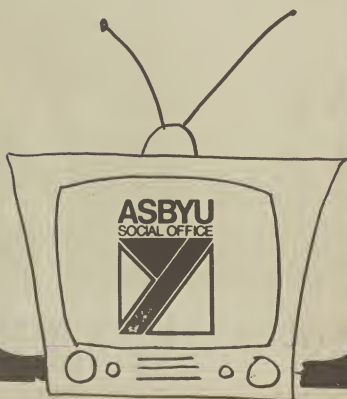

Video Tape is a two-year old program that was introduced to this campus through a National Entertainment Conference held in Washington, D.C. last year.

Dan Morgan, after previewing the tapes, decided to subscribe to it for BYU. The Social Office pays an initial fee for subscription and then rents each tape as it comes to the school. The choice is ours as to what we want to bring.

Three basic networks produce the video tapes: Video Tape Network, New Line Video and Day Video.

BYU has been rated in the top ten schools for video tape viewership. Three companies wanted to pay for our video tapes this year and advertise on them because of the tremendous response they have received. Because of BYU policies such arrangements were not possible.

If you enjoy them, let us know.

AFB flight path limited by House bill

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah House of Representatives, over objections of members who claim two Northern Utah local governments are shirking their zoning responsibilities, approved a $1.5 million bill to limit development in the Hill Air Force Base flight path.

The bill would authorize the State Department of Transportation to purchase easements on about 500 acres at the south end of the main runway at Hill. The Air Force considers this area, an "accident potential zone."

The Senate spent the morning working through resolutions concerning a series of minor bills. It agreed to consider Friday a resolution supporting development of the Kaiparowits power project in Kane County. A large delegation of county residents plans to be at the Capitol to show support today.

Force Base buffer zone bill say it will help ensure continued operation of the base, which they say adds millions of dollars to the Utah economy and employs more than 21,000 persons, a majority of them civilians. Opponents say the proposal amounts to state land use control and that Layton and Davis County have full authority to meet Air Force zoning requirements.

Provo gets in '76 spirit

By LEDA M. TULLY
Universe Staff Writer

Provo is building a 24-foot Bicentennial clock and a city park as part of the U.S. Bicentennial celebration. A book of local literary works will also be published. Because of these projects, The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) has recognized Utah County and Provo as a Bicentennial Community. According to Dr. Jennie Poulsen, member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Bicentennial clock has already been built and is ready to be put up as soon as weather permits. The clock will be on the northeast corner of the Provo City complex. The structure is of heavy steel poles with five bells in the middle, which will play every quarter hour, Dr. Poulsen said. Provo is also to build a park which will be mainly for recreation purposes with an amphitheater and eventually a zoo. It will be located on south State Street, said Dr. Clinton Larson of the Provo Bicentennial Commission. Another important project is a Patriotic Reader which will contain local literary works, said Dr. Larson. "Poems will be in three categories: the land, the people and the nation," he said. Dr. Richard H. Cracroft, chairman, BYU English Department, is in charge of the entries for this book and after all works come in the best entries will be chosen and the book is expected to be published July 4. Dr. Larson said that although BYU is not a recognized Community, it is part of the LDS Church which is doing projects for the Bicentennial. The school has planned different activities as part of the country wide celebration, he said. Over three-fourths of the nation's population live in official Bicentennial communities, according to the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission (ARBA). Thirty-five of these communities are in Utah. For a community to be recognized by the ARBA it must submit an idea for a project already in development. The projects must be developed in the areas of festival, heritage or historical, or horizon or future. One of these projects must result in a lasting reminder. After the application has been approved, the community is given the Bicentennial flag and a certificate of recognition. Communities that have been recognized have a chance to receive awards and even royalties, which are gained from sales of stickers and other bicentennial objects, for their own bicentennial projects, said Scott Gilmore, of the ARBA. The ARBA has provided official recognition to 209 Bicentennial programs or projects of regional, national or international significance.

BYU cyclists meet Saturday

All BYU students interested in participating in this summer's "Bikecentennial" are invited to meet Saturday at 10 a.m. in 80 JKB. "Bikecentennial" is a national bicycle tour which will be between Astoria, Ore. and Yorktown Va., according to Miss Debbie Blose, co-president of the BYU Bicycle Touring Society. Members of the society, dedicated to physical fitness, are forming a "special group" from BYU. The group is also interested in safety and will accept only those willing to abide by the rules, Miss Blose said. The organization also adheres to BYU standards.

New education head from

S. Kenneth Robbins, BYU Continuing Education Division information specialist, was elected president of the Adult Education Association (AEA) recently. In a meeting with the association and its other newly elected officers, Gov. Calvin L. Rampton challenged educators to extend existing educational facilities and programs to serve many more people.

Gov. Rampton spoke at the 14th annual conference, promising that educators would receive maximum cooperation from the legislature if they would obtain the maximum from education dollars. "The education budget for the State of Utah takes up more than half the money spent by the state and local government and this is as it should be," said Rampton. "But when we call upon the taxpayers to make a contribution of this kind, it is important that we in government and education make certain that we are getting the maximum out of our education dollars." Rampton said almost three-fourths public buildings in Utah are school buildings and that these are not fully utilized.

Bertrum C. Willis and Francis J. Dunleavy of ITT talk with President Spencer W. Kimball following presentation of funds.

Pres. Kimball receives funds for Y Indian aid

The International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. presented President Spencer W. Kimball with $5,000 to aid the Institute of American Indian Services and Research at BYU.

The money, which was presented last week, will aid the off-campus program in assisting American Indians in small business programs, agricultural projects, home management education and other areas.

Francis J. Dunleavy, president and chief operating officer of ITT, praised the work of the Institute, which was organized in 1958 under the sponsorship of President Kimball.

William Kelly, assistant to the director of the Institute, said the program was started as an arm of the university to reach out to the Indians off-campus, to help them use their resources to help themselves.

Dunleavy said the gift was in keeping with the ITT slogan—"The best ideas are the ideas that help people."

February deadline for contest

The deadline for the annual Vera Hinckley Mayhew Short Story and Poetry Contests is Feb. 16, according to Douglas H. Thayer, associate professor of English.

The contest, according to Thayer, will provide $1,000 in awards, $500 for each category and is open to all students enrolled at BYU with at least 10 credit hours. Graduate students enrolled with eight hours of credit (six if working as an instructor or teaching assistant) are also eligible.

Stories must be at least 2,500 and not more than 8,000 words long. Poetry should be from 50 to 300 lines and may be one long poem or any combination of shorter poems, according to contest rules.

Only one entry may be submitted in each contest by a student per year. Students who won first place awards in a previous year are not eligible.

Contest rules are available in the College of Humanities office, A-129 JKBA, or the Department of English office, A-246 JKBA.

Something for a Y rental shop

JANE SUTTON
Universe Staff Writer

BYU student loves inning, but there's just in an apartment to toboggan. What does BYU Outdoor Rentals
have the problem.

Rental service, which is at BYU nearly 12 is at the east canopy of the Wilkison Students, faculty and members may rent items extending an activity.
The rental fee is paid
the item is returned.

Rental shop has added items such as opylene snowshoes, ice toboggans, aluminum sleds and a variety of garnishes, says student ser Mike Williams.

ims said the shop also to add skiing and ent, golf clubs, more ing and picnic ment and more indoor to the inventory.

"We hope to have a competent ski rental system by next season, both downhill and cross country," said Williams.

Variety of items

Outdoor Rentals carries a variety of items such as bicycles, camping equipment, tents, indoor games, baby strollers, ice cream freezers, Santa Claus suits, rubber rafts, skateboards, tug-o-war ropes, freeze-dried foods, water skis and all kinds of sports equipment.

According to Williams, the most popular winter item is snowshoes. "Last year we had 40 pairs. This year, we doubled our inventory, and they're still always out." He attributes the popularity of snow shoes to the fact that "people are finding out that we have them. One branch even had a branch in snowshoeing party. They said they had a ball."

"Binoculars are also in large demand. They're all on reserve now for the Neil Diamond concert. They always go well before concerts and big games," he noted.

"During December, we do almost half of our business on Santa Claus suits," Williams said. "Ice cream freezers are also a demand during the holidays."

"During the summer, bicycles do overwhelming business. Also volleyball nets, baseball equipment, and camping equipment. We have enough sleeping bags and tests to handle large groups, and many branches take advantage of our facilities."

Summer is the best season for rentals, Williams said.
"Our goal is to make our winter season equal to it."
"Many people aren't aware of what we have," says Shawn Down, general center manager who also handles the rental shop. "We encourage people to come in and look around and see what we've got."

Outdoor Rentals is not open to the general public.
"We're here to provide service for the students," Down said.
"We have over 3,000 items."

"Santa" Jim Reidhead displays some of Outdoor Rentals' wide selection of equipment

We hope to have everything you could possibly need."

The shop gets requests for new items from students," said Williams, "but not enough. You'd be surprised how much of what we get is the result of student suggestions, especially with games."

Williams said a new card system is being formulated that should make renting "foolproof."

Diamond to start world tour following Utah appearances

Neil Diamond, scheduled to appear Feb. 5 in the BYU Marriott Center, will make Utah his last stop before embarking on New Zealand on the first leg of a two-year world tour, according to Cashbox Magazine.

Diamond will follow his BYU performance with appearances in Logan and Salt Lake on Feb. 6 and 7.
The Brooklyn-born composer-performer last appeared at BYU in March of 1972, before a crowd of 8,179 in the Smith
Fieldhouse.

Diamond has said he feels he has only begun to tap his resources of musical creation.
"I dream of being Beethoven and Tchaikovsky and Robert Frost. That's how much I think I can do musically."

Diamond's career had its beginning on his sixteenth birthday, when his parents gave him a second-hand guitar. He immediately took to the guitar with a fervor that extended to the financing of his own music lessons.

Several years later, Jeff Barry and Ellie Greenwich, two producers from Bang Records, a small recording company, heard Diamond in a Greenwich Village coffee house. They signed him, and he recorded three singles destined for the hit charts ("Solitary Man," "Gerry Cherry" and "I Got the Feeling." The rest is history.

From Bang he went to Uni Records, recording eight albums, all of which achieved over $1 million in sales. The Columbia contract followed, and the "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" album.

Local playhouse offers 'a refreshing change'

By CAROL ANASTASI
Universe Staff Writer

Downtown Provo offers innumerable recreational opportunities for students and families. But none seem as intimate or appealing as the Valley Centre Theatre, located at 60 N. 300 West.

Keith and Jody Renstrom, proprietors of the small converted theater, operate a non-profit play house for the benefit of the community.

"There's a real need for something like this in the community," said Mrs.
Renstrom. "Movies seem to be lacking in the basic element of entertainment and wholesome subject matter.

This is a refreshing change, where the community can become involved."

The theater is unusual in its casting preferentials, in that the directors cast actors from the local community and schools.

"We enjoy engaging folks from age 6 to 66 to portray characters in each play," Mrs.
Renstrom added enthusiastically.

Valley Centre Theatre has been operating for four months. Beginning Thursday evening of each week at 8 p.m. through Saturday, stagestruck community players perform various family-oriented plays.

No sex, violence

Several male theater-goers commented on the absence of sex, violence and profanity as commonly portrayed in other forms of entertainment. They agreed that this is more of the type they would bring a family or date to see.

Mrs. Renstrom explained how casting for the four previous plays was accomplished. "People come with little or no previous stage experience, but have a great desire to try it and have fun. We hold auditions every second Saturday of the month for future plays and we encourage all who want to come and try out."

This month's play, which ends Saturday night, is about a city-bred schoolmarm who teaches a small town more than reading and writing—la
"The Educated Heart."

Ralene Gammon stars as the spirited schoolmarm, with Leora Cropper as the frustrating, noisily know-it-all grandmother, Jerry Ferguson as Riley, who learns that brawns need brains, and Kim Meyer as Owen, the literate rival to Riley for the affections of the school teacher.

The next play, "Susie the Siren," begins Thursday.

Senior recital Saturday night

A senior in music education will give her student recital Saturday of songs written by foreign composers.

Mary Wuchler, a mezzo-soprano from Modesto, Calif., will be singing 12 different selections, including "Verborghenheit," by Hugo Wolf, and "Song of Innocence," by Paul Nordoff.
The concert will be given in the Madsen Recital Hall,
HFAC, at 8 p.m.

Concert does cost

There will be a charge for persons attending the
"Aspects of Americana" program, featuring concert pianist Dr. Marjion Richter, according to Ken Robison, publicity chairman of the Music Department. The program was incorrectly listed as being free.

The concert is being sponsored by the Utah Federal of Music Clubs and will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.
Admission is $1 for students.

UNM, UTEP

to fight in cage tilts

By JOY ROSS
Universe Sports Writer

Battling a five-game losing streak after heartbreaking losses to Arizona State and Utah, the BYU basketball team hosts New Mexico and UTEP Friday and Saturday nights in the Marriott Center.

"We know we have our backs to the wall at this point in the season, but we haven't lost faith in the club, nor have they, lost faith in themselves," said Head Coach Frank Arnold. "We know we are a much better club than our 0-3 record in the conference would indicate."

Both UTEP and New Mexico are tied with Arizona at 3-1 for the lead in the WAC, with the UTEP Miners 13-3 overall the best in the conference.

New Mexico, under Head Coach Norm Ellenberger, recently squeaked by both Arizona State and Wyoming, and was edged by one point by Arizona. The Lobos head the WAC in rebounding with a 53.8 percent average, led by Larry Gray whose individual overall average of 11.3 rebounds puts him first in the league.

The Lobos are paced by little Ricky Williams of Buffalo, N.Y. The 6-1 sophomore guard leads in WAC games in free throws with a 93.8 percent average and is scoring over 16 points per game in WAC play. Former junior college All-American George Berry and teammate Larry Gray of New Mexico lead WAC rebounding statistics with 9.3 averages.

"New Mexico is extremely tenacious on offense," said BYU Assistant Coach Harry Anderson, "and they really like to run. With their All-American transfers (Berry and Larry Forte), we'll have our hands full."

Texas-El Paso runs a defense that BYU Coach Anderson calls simply "awesome." In last weekend's win over Arizona, the Miners held Arizona's inside performance, one short jumper from the free throw line, and one layup by the starting guards. The Wildcats made only 11 field goals the entire game.

With the lowest scoring defense average in the conference at 54.8 and a 66.1 percent average, leads the WAC with a scoring margin of 11.3 over their opponents.

Senior forward Gary Brewster leads the Miners in total scoring, holding a 13.8 average, with junior guard Jake Poole hot on his heels at 12.8. John Saffie and Jake Poole are top in the WAC in field goals with a 63.56 percent and 60.4 percent respectively.

The Cougars greatly reduced turnovers from 28 in previous weeks to 13 in the Utah game. "We have really emphasized passing drills against pressure," said Assistant Coach Harry Anderson. Anderson called the turnovers a "direct result of a change in our offensive pattern" and predicted a gradual tapering down of the turnovers as the season progresses.

Junior forward Jay Cheesman leads the Cougars in scoring with an 18.4 average that puts him fourth overall in the WAC. Cheesman is also second in the WAC in free throws with a .900 average. BYU's total team free throw percentage of 77.4 puts it first in the league.

Preceding the varsity games, the JV team will meet Dixie College Friday night and then host ICAC conference leader Snow College on Saturday night. Both games will begin at 5:15 p.m.

Cougars proud of play, won't quit, Mould says

By BRAD REMINGTON
Assistant Sports Editor

Tim Mould stepped up to the free throw line, while 15,000 fans hung on nervously to the edge of their seats. The scoreboard showed Utah ahead, 74-72, with just 1:16 remaining. These were big free throws for a sophomore starting for the first time.

Stiff-armed, but confident, Mould tossed in the first of two. He jerked back, happy to be halfway there. The second was a little easier and the score was now tied. A controversial call at the buzzer spoiled the moment and Utah won.

"Proud"

"We are proud of our play against Utah," Mould said, looking back on Saturday's game. "It was nice to be able to contribute, but now we are looking ahead to New Mexico and UTEP."

At 6-4, 205 pounds, Mould is the biggest guard on the team. A center at California High School in Whittier, Calif., Mould has been able to make the transition to guard on offense, but has found it a challenge defensively.

"It's tough to have everybody behind you. The forwards and center have to talk to you all the time to let you know what is going on," Mould said.

Mould is not a fancy guard, so the other guard usually brings the ball up the court. However, Mould said that his size usually works to his advantage because he goes up against a small defender.

The Cougars have started four different guards this season, so Mould really has to work to start. "We have a lot of good players. Nobody is that much better than anyone else," commented Mould.

'Enthusiastic'

BYU has had to bounce back from some disappointing losses, like last week's tilt with Utah. But Mould said that the team is enthusiastic and knows it could easily have a 2-1 WAC record.

Even though the record could be better with a few breaks, Mould said he thinks the Cougars are giving the fans a good brand of basketball.

"We are diving for balls, running and doing a lot of things that make the game exciting," he added.

It seems Mould plays his best basketball when his fiancée comes from California to see him play. She was at the Utah game and will be here this weekend. "I always play better when Lorie is here," Mould said, grinning.

Sat out

Mould played two years ago for Coach Glenn Potter, then sat out a year. He said he has noticed a lot more enthusiasm under Coach Frank Arnold's leadership.

"He has us believing we can win," Mould concluded. "We are trying to do it this year for the coach."

One of two players on the team who are not LDS, Mould said he likes it here at BYU. He was recruited by Missouri, San Jose State and about four or five other schools. "I chose BYU because it has the most class," Mould explained.

Played well

Mould said he thinks he probably earned last week's starting assignment because he played well in JV games against Arizona and Arizona St. "I got a chance to show the coaches what I'm able to do," he added.

The recent decision by the coaching staff to run a two-guard offense instead of a one-guard offense has also opened up more playing time for Mould. He said he was happy because "it gives us a better shot selection."

Thinclads host meet Saturday

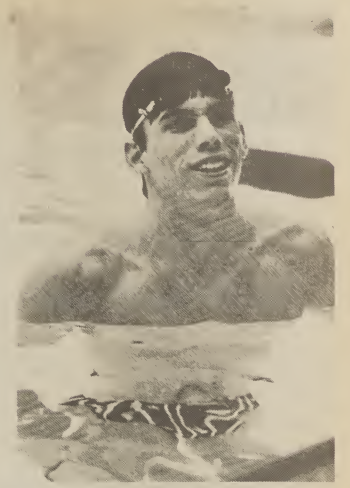

BYU's track team will host the College of Eastern Utah and Utah in a triangular meet Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse. Idaho State will not participate as planned because of scheduling conflicts.

According to Coach Clarence Robison, BYU expects some good competition in the middle distance races of the quarter mile, the 600 and 1000 meters, and the mile relay. "Utah has some people that are excellent," said Robison, "but they are weak in areas." BYU won 10 of 16 events in an indoor meet with Utah and Colorado State last weekend.

Although BYU will be without a shotputter, Robison predicts Cougar victories in the high jump, pole vault and long distance races such as the mile. "We'll run well in most of the races," said Robison, "but in these we should be all alone." The Cougars have Allen Johnson in the high jump, Jim Barry pole vaulting, and several good distance runners. The Cougars add to a long list of injured team members sprinter Clay Balkwell, who will be unable to run this weekend. Despite the plague of injuries, Coach Robison is pleased by the team performances, especially this early in the season. With the arrival of the outdoor season, potential NCAA qualifiers Tapio Kussela (hammer throw), Ken Gardman (discus) and Richard George (javelin) will join the team.

As the thinclads get into WAC meets, Robison expects former national champion UTEP to provide the most fierce competition. "They haven't lost much; all they've done is gain strength," said Robison, "so they'll be pretty tough."

Although no team scores will be kept at this weekend's meet, it will give the Cougars a chance to compete despite having the ground covered with snow. According to Robison, the team will begin scoring meets after returning from the Meet of Champions next weekend in Pocatello, Idaho.

All-American swimmer Dave White holds the WAC record for the 200 breaststroke.

Swimcats winning in 'rebuilding' year

By TERRI BELL
Universe Sports Editor

Even though it was supposed to be rebuilding this year, the BYU swim team has come a long way from that.

Returning from a fifth-place position in the conference with only one win recorded last season, the Cats already have four wins to their credit this year. Their two losses so far came at the hands of nationally ranked teams: USC, rated No. 1, and California.

"We can't feel bad about the losses," said Coach Tim Powers. In the USC meet, the Trojans won seven races while the Cougars took six. "They were impressed enough to ask us back next year," Powers said. BYU lost to the Golden Bears on the last relay. "By the end of the season, we should be in the top 20 nationally," the coach added.

Olympian Powers came to BYU last fall from Los Gatos (California) High School. With him he brought an Olympic swimmer he coached at Los Gatos, Piero Ferracuti represented El Salvador in the 1972 Olympics before becoming an All-American under Powers in high school.

The coach feels he has two other potential Olympians on the team. Junior Dave White, an All-American who holds the WAC record for the 200 breaststroke, and sophomore Mark McGregor, both went to the NCAA last year. "White was an excellent opportunity for the Olympics, and with the way McGregor has been swimming, he might have a chance too," Powers said.

Transfer Junior Bruce Bowlsby also went to the NCAA last year, and holds the WAC record for the 200 butterfly. Mark Murphy, a transfer from California, holds the fastest time for the backstroke in junior college.

Freshman John Sorich, a freestyle swimmer, is what Powers termed "a leader. He's a hard worker."

Team captain Rick Rameston won three WAC events as a freshman, but according to Powers, hasn't lived up to his possibilities. "I hope he will develop into the swimmer he once was," Powers said.

Swimmers Other Y swimmers include Steve Skidmore in the IM and distance freestyle, who was also coached by Powers in California; Lyle Christofferson, a sophomore freestyler from Magna; Dan Clement in the butterfly; and Chris Smith swimming the backstroke and freestyle. Joe Brown and Jim Jaffries are both sprinters; Randy Trowbridge, a distance freestyler, Jim Tingey, a sprinter and middle distance freestyler; Terry Boyle, a senior swimming the butterfly; middle distance freestyler Steve Smith; and divers Shawn McInch and Randy Letellier round out the team.

Utah The Cougars have defeated Utah in two dual meets this season, the first time in at least five years. The WAC finals will be held in the Ute Natatorium, which will be a plus factor over defending champion Arizona for the Cougars and Utah, because of the altitude, Powers said.

"Right now we have the fastest times in the conference," he added. If the Cougars keep on like they have been, this "rebuilding" year could prove to be a very profitable one.

Y swim teams to host UNLV

The BYU men's and women's swim teams meet Nevada-Las Vegas in alternating competition in the Richards Building pool beginning at 3:30 p.m. today.

The Cougar women look tough after finishing a strong second to Arizona at the Utah Invitational Meet held in Salt Lake City in early December.

The women will be paced by Liz Young, a sophomore, who swept both the 50 and 100 freestyle events in the Utah Invitational.

Another strong performer to watch will be freshman Lisa Nelson from California. She placed first in the 100 and 200-yard individual medley (IM) and also outdistanced everyone to win the 100-yard backstroke.

BYU gymnasts home, on road

Men travel to California

Women to host USU, UNC

Still hot from their win over No. 2-ranked Cal State-Fullerton, the BYU gymnasts go on the road this weekend to face Cal State-Northridge and Long Beach State. BYU's gymnasts will be without top all-around performer Donovan Sparhawk, due to a shoulder injury incurred on the still rings in last weekend's meet. Dan Drew, a side horse specialist, will go in Sparhawk's place.

"The rings and horizontal bars are particularly hard on shoulders," said Coach Johnson. He added that next weekend's meet with Arizona State coming up, it is especially important that Sparhawk not be injured.

According to Johnson, BYU will be strong on side horse, with specialists Tom Dopp, Gary Crandall, and Dan Drew. Other strong events for the Cougars will be long horse and the horizontal bars.

Expected back on the parallel bars, said Johnson, is Scott Bleak of Klamath Falls. One Bleak had been temporarily suspended from competition while his credits for eligibility were reviewed. "Without Scott, I'd say the meet could be a toss-up," said Johnson. "He'll make nearly two points difference for us on the parallel bars because he'll get nine's."

According to Johnson, Long Beach State is the "best of the two" with two "excellent" side horse specialists.

The Cougar women's gymnastics team will go up against one of the stronger and one of the weaker teams in the league today at 6:30 p.m. in 146-156 RB.

The Cats will face Northern Colorado, which traditionally has an outstanding team, and Utah State, which has only three performers this year.

Although Northern Colorado is without its top performer in last year's, the team does have depth.

"We would have to throw very good routines to beat UNC," said Coach Lu Wallace. BYU has been outscored by the Colorado school for the past three years.

Utah State will face the team with its limited squad. "There should be no problems in beating USU," Miss Wallace said.

Freshman Linda Schader has offered BYU's best performance this year, placing fifth in all-around competition at last week's meet against Utah.

Utah completely dominated the meet in Provo. The Utes earned 98.01 points, Arizona placed second with 93.94 and BYU took third with 89.51.

Utah relied almost entirely on the efforts of sophomores Julie Brooks and Margaret Hammond. The two performers placed first and second in the floor exercise, vault, beam and all-around competition.

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

Look beyond facts before you judge

News events are often filled with a tragedy which never makes it to the front page and which is rarely brought to the reader's attention.

Such is the case in reporting the recent accusations against and trials of Jim Pedersen and Dan Morgan, ASBYU Finance and Social vice presidents.

Few students will ever know, unless they were in attendance, of the staff meetings in which officers under fire had to conduct business as usual.

Few can imagine the joy of Jim Pedersen and his wife when they were told chances for acquittal were good, or their sorrow after weeks of worry and stress came to an end with results opposite to those they had anticipated.

"When I walk down the hall," Pedersen said Tuesday, "people look the other way."

Lives are involved in the news. Those names set in nine-point body type are people.

Few of us seem to realize that. Far too often, it seems, as ASBYU Pres. Bob Henrie said after Supreme Court meetings Monday which handed down the first official advisement in the cases, that the public is indeed "out for blood."

And that's a shame.

Perhaps it comes from the manner in which the stories are reported. But the reporters in question on this series of stories have gone out of their way to give everyone involved a fair break, even to the point of calling people at home to make sure quoted statements were accurate.

Perhaps it's because Pedersen and Morgan built up a lot of enemies who would seek political revenge.

That seems unlikely, too. Both have been good officers, and both have people working on their present staffs who worked against them at election time.

The Social Office under Dan Morgan for the first time in years has been in the black. Pedersen is respected and trusted by those who know him well.

Both have had crowds of friends show up at public meetings debating their situations. Other friends have written letters suggesting that the press had no right to make the matter public in the first place, because it is concerned with private lives, and the actual offenses would be minor if committed by a student not holding an executive position.

More than likely, the source of animosity lies not with the press nor with the officers, but rather with those who read the news — but only read it partially.

Too often a glance at a paper is substituted for true investigation on the part of the reader. A headline about an accusation is automatically transformed into a conviction in his hurried mind. He makes value judgments without knowing what's going on behind the scenes — and often without knowing what's going on at all.

Those who say a story in the paper automatically convicts are ignorant as to the role of a newspaper. That role is to inform the reader by presenting facts, making him aware of what he wouldn't normally notice otherwise. It is the reader's job to interpret these facts and draw his own conclusion as to guilt or innocence.

Too often, however, we, as a public assume we are informed when all we've done is to skim the headlines or listen to the six o'clock news.

Y Constitution in need of change?

The ASBYU Social Office was run by a part-time student who was not a member of the Associated Students of Brigham Young University last semester. Or, was he a member of ASBYU?

The ASBYU Constitution specifies that all full-time students are members of ASBYU. Yet it does not state whether part-time students belong to ASBYU. Did we have a situation last semester that would be similar to having a Utah governor who did not reside in this state?

Even though the constitution does require that officers be full-time students, it does not stipulate what the consequences should be for officers who do not adhere to this requirement.

Financial Vice Pres. Jim Pedersen's case further illustrates the ambiguity of the ASBYU Constitution. It is clear that student government officers are to maintain a 2.25 GPA "while in office." However, is it to be computed for each semester, for the total credits during the time the officer is in office, or for the cumulative college total?

The recent cases dealing with constitutional violations raise the question: Is the ASBYU Constitution a viable document?

Working with the constitution as it is now set up is like trying to put together a 1,000-piece jigsaw puzzle with only 500 pieces. One has an idea of what the picture is, but not many of the details. In some cases, the person is unable to put parts of the puzzle together.

It is time for a thorough revision of the ASBYU Constitution. The Executive Council should enlist the help of the law school, the administration and the student body in forming a viable ASBYU Constitution.

Important structural changes need to be considered. Presently, the Executive Council is both the legislative and administrative body. Would the students be better served if the Executive Council were made exclusively an administrative body and a legislature instituted?

In order to make any changes, the student body will need to take an interest in the action. The present constitution requires at least 10 per cent of the ASBYU participate in the voting and that two-thirds of those voting approve the revision.

Student government has made progress this year in being a practicable body that served the students' real needs. A viable constitution is needed to assure that this end is reached.

Increase fire prevention

Recently a fire swept through a Wymount Terrace apartment causing approximately $10,000 worth of damage.

The fire reportedly began in a bedroom and was detected by the smell of smoke.

No lives were lost, but the losses suffered by the young family were substantial. The family lost practically everything they owned.

Imagine being in such a discouraging situation. Most married students find it difficult just making ends meet, without facing a disaster.

Isn't there some way to prevent such loss and sorrow as the Denny family is now facing?

Although fire insurance can reimburse BYU for the partial loss of a building, who could reimburse the Denny family for that which was burned? Friends of the family and campus organizations are energetically trying.

Reimbursement, though, is not the answer.

Fire extinguishers may help, but only if the fire is detected early enough and if the extinguisher is the right type to combat the three different kinds of fire. As was the case in the Wymount Terrace fire, using some extinguishers is like fighting a fire with a squirt-gun.

According to a proclamation by the President of the United States in 1972, preventive measures which would reduce the number of fire disasters include improved public education and early-warning alarm and detection systems.

In 1975 a number of cities in Utah, including Provo and Orem, adopted Uniform Building Codes. They require "every dwelling unit within an apartment house shall be provided with approved detectors of products of combustion other than heat." The codes required the same protection for private homes.

Although these building codes apply only to buildings erected in 1975 or after, the same protection should be afforded the older dwelling units. The detection system could

Clean food, clean place for Y student gourmet

Most BYU students are heard to complain about BYU Food Services some time during their stay at the university. However, these comments are usually of personal taste rather than complaints against the quality of the food preparation.

BYU Food Services prides itself in being one of the most sanitary restaurant areas in the state. Officials who inspect the cafeterias on the campus regularly are amazed at the cleanliness and care that is taken in food preparation.

Sanitary restaurant conditions are expected by most anyone who eats away from home. But a recent study showed that it is not necessarily common.

A government investigation of restaurants in nine major cities across the country checked the sanitation practices of 183 representative restaurants.

The study by the Food and Drug Administration found 90 per cent of the restaurants inspected to be "insanitary." The inspectors found everything from roaches crawling on food to improper temperatures for food storage through the sample areas. And there were numerous other serious offenses.

In the BYU cafeterias, all personnel are required to clean up as they work, as well as be tidy in their own personal appearance. Most competitive restaurants do not seem to have this pride nor see the necessity of having sanitary working conditions.

The government study was conducted from January to March of last year, but an FDA official told the General Accounting Office (GAO) that conditions "have not greatly improved" in restaurants since that time. In order to assure that inspections of areas are made and recommendations are out, all levels of government need involved.

The GAO report said state and enforcement are very ineffective reluctant to suspend or revoke permit violations that repeatedly break sanitary codes.

Instead of students making comment about the type of food they find in eating places, they should perhaps find what precautions are taken in preparing food.

Parking lots insufficient for B zones

Never doubt for one minute that the noble art of dueling has not come to begin to that of a pack of drivers fighting for a parking space at a given day in a B-permit only parking lot.

Parking space for upper-division graduate students at BYU seems dwindling more and more each year. V comes student frustrations about the length it takes to find adequate space in order to reach classes on time.

Administration personnel have claimed adequate parking space is available in areas across the campus to accommodate a car at any time.

There seems to be conflicting feeling on campus parking, however, distraught student recently described process of finding a parking space at Harris Fine Arts Center Parking I. In order to begin to procure and secure space in order to reach classes on time, administration personnel have claimed adequate parking space is available in areas across the campus to accommodate a car at any time.

Certainly there is observable sentiment indicating that the time has come for further in-depth studies into parking situation at BYU. Perhaps student-administration meeting would order to begin to procure and secure space in order to reach classes on time, administration personnel have claimed adequate parking space is available in areas across the campus to accommodate a car at any time.

In any event, action needs to be taken. Proper planning and more rigid measure parking control certainly are in order at a time.

Officers deserve fair trial

Editor: Mr. Clifford M. Lee in his letter of Jan. 28, started his argument for the impeachment of Mr. Morgan and Mr. Pedersen quite logically; however, we found it a bit hard to swallow the statement, "I don't see... why they should even be given a chance to defend themselves."

The question is not as to their guilt or innocence, because that has already been determined. The question is whether they have the right to a fair trial or not. It is a party is obviously guilty in the mind of the public, does that give them the right to pass judgment without benefit of a fair trial?

It was obvious to the residents of Missouri that the saints were a "public nuisance," and should be expelled. Do we have any more right to take the law into our own hands than those people did?

It puts it in a little different perspective when it pertains to us or our ancestors. Perhaps we would all be a lot better off if we would remember, "Judge not, that ye be not judged" (Matt. 7:1).

—Joseph LaMont Smith Gary Blaylock Salt Lake City

Morgan has worked hard

Editor: It is interesting to note that in dropping down to a part-time student he is definitely a change in tuition. A full-time student pays $340 tuition a part-time student pays 1/2 that, $170. Morgan was on a scholarship, so this money would have had to have been refunded internally. It would be hard to convince me that whoever is in charge of the allocation of that $170 wouldn't have noticed that Morgan had dropped to part-time. Why did they wait to inform him he was in error after it was too late to do anything about it. If Morgan had been aware that his vice presidency was being jeopardized, I'm sure he could have picked up a block class, a home study class, or even a night class. Morgan has put too much work into his office to willfully let himself get into the position he is in.

Another item the Supreme Court must definitely consider is the quality of job Dan Morgan has provided. Morgan spends at least 25 hours a week in his office, serving the students and promoting BYU. Morgan and his staff have worked extremely hard in bringing such entertainers as Mac Davis, Peter Yarrow, Huey Lewis and the News, and the Nitty Gritty Band, Marvin Payne and Neil Diamond. And that's not mentioning the many very successful weekly dances provided by Morgan's staff, the Video Tape Program, the extremely successful and well liked "Our Gang" Program. Any one connected or remotely associated with Dan Morgan or the Social Office knows the dedicated manner with which Morgan goes about his job. I assert that there is no better person available for this position than Dan Morgan, and if he loses his position the student body of BYU will notice this loss in the future activities of the Social Office.

Swim team lacks coverage

Editor: Have been avid readers of the sports page of the Daily Universe since 1968, we feel we have a right to complain. The coverage given BYU's outstanding swim team this year has been unbelievably poor! The truth is, I want to get the important happenings in BYU. In nearly a full-page spread Wednesday, Jan. 28, the Salt Lake Tribune devoted its efforts to the accomplishments of this year's team. Among other things, the Tribune emphasized that after going 6 years without a dual-meet victory over the University of Utah in swimming, BYU totally annihilated Utah 81 to 30 earlier this year. And this over a Utah team rated 10th in the nation and a BYU team supposedly in a rebuilding with 13 freshmen and a new head coach. Then several hours followed this latest, disappointing basketball loss, the swim team again came through, this time in Utah's home pool. The meet was closer this second time. Our swim team only won by 10 points.

Yes, the Universe has dropped a few short bluffs every now and then, but these are greatly disproportionate to the achievements of this truly fine group of athletes.

It is unfortunate that three days in a row, the sports writers must feature pictures and articles on a call that can never be changed. Rather than concentrate on a losing effort, let's add something from time to time about some real winners. (This is not to malign the basketball team or Coach Arnold, for whom we have great hope and respect.) But it is time to give proper recognition when it is so well-earned.

To say the least, we are excited about Coach Tim Peterson and what his swimmers are doing to build a national power in our midst. It is time the sports staff of the Universe woke up and recognized such an outstanding effort!

Pedestrians—be cautious

Editor: A mob in Thursday's Universe warned us motorists of the penalties for parking for pedestrians at crosswalks. May I take a moment, as a motorist, to warn the wanton pedestrians who charge into Provo city streets and BYU campus drives without looking for oncoming traffic? The law may be on their side, but bulk and weight are on the side of my car. I may pay with a fine, but they may pay with a limb or a life. May I encourage a degree of caution on their part?

—Frank Riggs Montgomery, Ala.

Impressed with Cougar Band

Editor: I was thoroughly impressed last Thursday with the "Take Ten" concert featuring the Cougar Band. They did an outstanding job! They're the kind of band that can easily change your mood, even a party and even make you feel good after a long hard fought game.

Thanks and keep up the good work.

No apology due from Brown

Editor: I have been amused this week by my fellow BYU fans as they cried sour grapes over the last-second loss to Utah last Saturday. I was not amused though by Richard Hawthorne when he called for an apology by official Irv Brown for allowing Buster Matheny's last second field goal to count when in Hawthorne's opinion the basket was illegal on two counts.

My point is this: there is no provision in NCAA rules to consult video replays to settle controversial calls until there is such a rule (heaven forbid) we must rely on the judgment of the officials. The fact is that even after watching replays in slow motion and stop action it is still difficult to determine what the ruling should have been. Referee Brown could have consulted all 15,000 of us who were there and he wouldn't have heard the same version of what happened twice.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Robert D. Wood thinks it's about time someone started blaming the glut of television cop shows on the public instead of on him and his fellow network executives. "You can't be oblivious to what the audience is seeking," says Wood, the affable, 50-year-old president of CBS. "And I'm not saying that 'we gave them what they want.' Kind of thing, but if you put on a Bacon Hill and you get a 13 share meaning 13 percent of the national audience watching TV at the time, and you put on a Starky and Hutch and you get a 42, it tells you something about what the audience is going to do.

finish can enhance room

will material is the prime consideration when you decide to finish an attic, a basement, a garage, a carport or a porch. Everything else that will be put into the manick of the attic should be selected after the decision on the kind of material.

A well-stocked building center or lumberyard will have dozens of different wall materials on hand, and within many other materials that number of varieties. Should you not find what you want, you may also consider you have seen in a home or rough as paneling.

not require finishing. The standard gypsum board has a plain paper covering that usually is painted or covered with a flexible material or some other type of finish.

Wood paneling remains a favorite, having both a literal and figurative warmth. Boards usually are installed horizontally and can be put up with a special effect. Plywood and hardboard sheets, as well as many other materials that have been used for a long time, also can be used for finishing.

Other wall materials include insulation wallboard, insulating board, particle board, fibboard, asbestos board, plaster, glass block, plastic, and such things as brick and stone veneer, plastic brick, ceramic tiles and mirrors.

So, when you decide to finish a room, shop around for what's available. Before you attend have settled on a material, think about going to use. It's a interesting experience.

Toothy tale to be topic

Feel like you're paying through the teeth for dental care? The sixth "Consumer Survival Kit," airing at 8 p.m. on Channel 11, Feb. 6 at 9, offers the viewer a "conscientiously applied program of oral hygiene and regular professional care."

The program may also be seen on Channel 11 Feb. 6 at 9.

Host Larry Lewman quizzes the audience on a variety of tooth care topics and comedians Edmonds and Curley set teeth on edge as Buck Charters, D.J. Anderson and another comedian discuss criteria to be considered in selecting a dentist, as well as what to expect in that first visit.

Bob Smith, Curley and Lewman are explaining about every meal, but offers some dental short cuts that will go a long way toward reducing tooth decay, plus pointers on proper brushing and flossing techniques for when you do

Hunting enthusiasts

No need to hibernate

By REED RICHINS
Universe Staff Writer

Hunting enthusiasts willing to outlive coyote haven't been to the mountains, despite winter weather.

A most well-known resource is non-game animals and may be bagged without limit, according to the Division of Wildlife Resources.

Many people like to hunt these animals at night, for which a $5 spotlighting permit is required.

Interest in hunting coyotes and bobcats is high, according to dealers. "The reason they're hunting is for the fur," said Blaine Munn, a Provo dealer.

Hunters often sell hides to ranchers and are not in control. The ranchers in turn sell the hides to a fur dealer, said R.L. Tichenor, a Provo fur dealer.

Other Seasons
Those for whom shooting skunks is distasteful may be interested in hunting badgers.

Some may have resigned themselves to a winter void of hunting. Hunting equipment should not be neglected, air, he suggested.
